Top Allied Chiefs Resigned To Let Most Of Indochina Run Down Communist Drain

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Diplomatic Reporter
WASHINGTON (AP)—Top Allied leaders are resigned to losing a great block of Indochina to the Communists.

The shooting war was around Hanoi and peace negotiations between French-led forces and the Communists have gone beyond the point where the United States can influence them decisively.

The issue of Red Chinese bids for recognition and for United Nations membership is expected to press hard upon the heels of any Indochina settlement.

With Moscow needing, this issue promises to make grave trouble among the United States, Britain and France in the fall.

Other forces, too, are working to pull the Western Allies apart despite the emphasis placed here this week on what Sir Winston Churchill called an "unbreakable solidarity."

It is exactly a week now since Churchill flew into Washington by his own request to talk, alongside Foreign Secretary Eden, with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.

It has been an intensive week in other ways. Talks on the Southeast Asian crisis have been held by Dulles with Australia's Foreign Minister Richard Casey, New Zealand's Ambassador Leslie Munro and Thailand's foreign minister, Prince Wan Wathayakon. The situation has been touched upon in official British-American statements, in a Churchill talk and in an Eisenhower press conference.

The conclusions stated above have been drawn from an analysis of all these developments, and from many talks with knowledgeable diplomatic sources.

The ability of the free world to meet the Communist threat inside Indochina appears not to have been materially increased. Dulles' efforts to get going at once on a collective defense for Southeast Asia remain frustrated and frozen although some thought is now being given to trying to change this situation.

There is among officials of the Eisenhower administration an obvious feeling that general relations with Britain are for the moment a little better, but do not show very much improvement in basic ways. There has been no evidence of any gleeful shouting on the part of any of the people who have participated in the extraordinary diplomatic activity.

The situation may best be seen in the light of two or three recent incidents. On March 29 the Ameri-

Calvary EUB Church Supports Moves To Curb 'Comic Books'

Another Circleville church group was on record Friday in support of tentative plans to seek tighter restrictions on the sale of fake "comic books."

Latest organization to signify backing for any such action is the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church. Action by the church council, which followed similar action by the church's Brotherhood, was announced by the Rev. James B. Recob, pastor.

He said his church members officially praised the work of The Herald in turning the critical spotlight here on the fake "comics," long recognized as a national problem. The Herald carried a series of articles on the harmful effect such books can have on young readers in this district.

Members of the Pontious Evangelical United Brethren Church issued a statement last week supporting any move to crack down on the "comics" here.

THE CHURCH council of administration serves as governing body of the Calvary EUB Church between semi-annual sessions of the denominational conference. The council acted one day after the Brotherhood voted support for proposed action against the "comics". Circleville Rotary Club has announced that the feasibility of any

Arithmetic Easy With 'Modern' Teaching, Claim

NEW YORK (AP)—Arithmetic is much easier these days, or so says R. L. Morton, professor of education at Ohio University.

Here, for example, he told mathematics teachers attending the annual convention of the National Education Association, is the theory on which pupils used to be taught to subtract 28 from 43:

"Subtract 8 from 13 after the 3 has been increased to 13 by adding 10."

Trouble with this, said Morton, is that "the source of the 10 is not apparent and the matter seems to be beyond the grasp of 8 and 9-year-olds."

Here is the up-to-date theory: "Forty-three may be thought of as three 10s and thirteen 1s as well as four 10s and three 1s. Then the subtraction or removal of eight 1s from thirteen 1s and of two 10s from the remaining three 10s is not difficult to understand."

How's that again, professor?

Medical Reports Trim Use Of Cigarettes Only Slightly

NEW YORK (AP)—Most of the country's cigarette smokers still are puffing away, although apparently with some restraining anxieties, despite medical reports the habit might hasten their death.

This was the situation indicated today by checks with tobacco wholesalers and retailers in more than a score of major cities across the nation.

Most of them said they had detected no change in cigarette sales since an American Cancer Society report 10 days ago that average cigarette users 50 to 70 die sooner, mainly of heart attacks or cancer. "Smokers seem generally complacent about it," said a San Francisco wholesaler. "They figure why worry when the hydrogen bomb is liable to snuff out their lives anyhow someday."

However, there were some reports of sales drops, amounting to as much as 25 per cent, along with other signs some smokers were disturbed. A change to filter-tipped cigarettes was a wide trend.

AMONG 75 sources, some of them representing chains with hundreds of outlets, 52 said cigarette sales had remained unchanged, 15 reported slumps, usually slight, such action had been placed under committee study.

Commenting upon action by his church and its Brotherhood, the Rev. Mr. Recob wrote to The Herald:

"The Calvary Church is greatly concerned about that which finds its way into the impressionable minds of the younger citizenry of Circleville. We therefore are vigorously opposed to the sale of any obscene or vulgar literature by the merchants of Circleville to the children of our city."

"We commend you for the fine way in which you have taken the lead in bringing to the attention of the public the dangers latent in the publication and distribution of so-called 'comic' books, which are not worthy of that name."

Philippines Hit By Earthquake

First Reports Say 22 Killed, Score Hurt

MANILA (AP)—At least 22 persons were reported dead and scores were injured today in a strong earthquake which jolted the central Philippines.

The provincial capital of Sorsogon bore the brunt of the quake and a police official there reported 20 persons were dead and enormous property damage. Two others were killed in Legaspi City to the north.

Capt. Isagani Abella, commander of the Sorsogon constabulary garrison radioed police headquarters here:

"Twenty persons believed dead this capital alone. Property damage enormous. Concrete fence around our camp and our radio transmitter station totally wrecked. Our headquarters badly damaged."

There's Trouble In Paradise Now

PARADISE, Calif. (AP)—There's trouble in Paradise.

A warrant issued yesterday charges the Rev. Harry Strauss, member of the First Baptist Church, with being a "very depressed" because he felt his chamber job was "not working out right."

"After I mail this to you," he told his wife in the letter which was postmarked in Chicago Tuesday, "I am going up to the 23rd floor of the Palmer House and jump. That will end it as far as I am concerned."

Chief Willis Jones of Park Ridge said Groebel, after stating in the letter to his wife that he might jump from a tall building, remarked as an afterthought that he might drown himself instead in Lake Michigan.

Chicago police joined in the search after Mrs. Groebel reported receiving the letter. Groebel took his post with the chamber of commerce Jan. 1. He previously was credit manager of a milling company in Lima, Ohio.

Indications of a switch was to filter-tipped cigarettes came from dealers in nearly every city.

"More filtered smokes are offsetting any loss in sale of regular brands," said wholesalers in Raleigh, N. C.

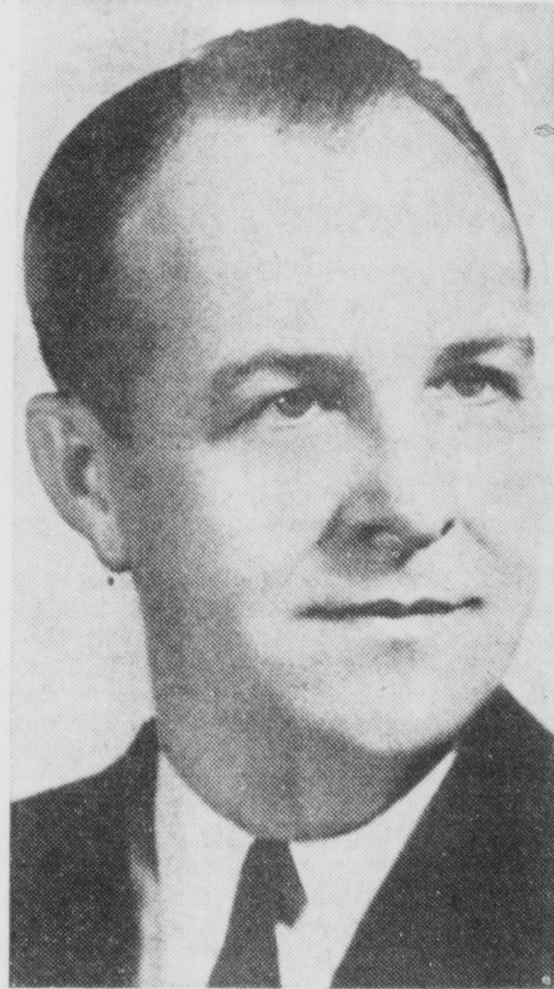

Cigarette holders also were getting popular. Said one of Connecticut's largest retailers:

"We've sold more filter-type cigarette holders during the past year than in the history of the company. People are looking for all kinds of ways to continue smoking to avoid any harmful effects."

Said a Dallas secretary: "I might as well die happy."

Farm Bloc Defeats Try To Trim 2-Price Setup

PLANS have been completed for a Friday reception for the Rev. and Mrs. Charles D. Reed, who moved to Circleville earlier this week with their three children. The Rev. Mr. Reed (right) has been appointed pastor at Circleville Methodist Church, and will reside at the parsonage, 120 N. Pickaway St. The reception Friday will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. in the church social rooms. The public has been invited.

District's First Wheat Reports Indicate Harvest Dry, Good

Three reports of excellent new wheat in Pickaway County have been issued here. Moisture content seems to average 12 per cent, and test weight 59 to 62 pounds per bushel.

Pickaway Grain reports receipt of approximately 10,000 bushels, 5,000 of that total coming Thursday. The average moisture content, a spokesman said, ranges from 11 1/2 to 13 per cent. The firm records test weight at 60 pounds to the bushel, which is top grade.

Ralston Purina has received two loads of 200 pounds each. Moisture content of these shipments was 12 per cent, with test weight being 61 to 62 pounds, also top grade. Officials said their loads are exceptionally dry and good.

Heffner Grain Elevator in Williamsport reports 150 bushels received. Moisture content of 12 per cent was recorded. Test weight was listed at 59 pounds to the bushel, just missing top grade by one pound.

LARRY BEST, Pickaway County Agricultural Agent, said all indications point to a good yield of 30 to 40 bushels to the acre for farmers in the county. He said this is 10 to 15 bushels per acre above the average yield expected.

"If there is no rain," Best commented, "wheat combines all over the county should be going full blast all of next week. The land here is the driest, which is excellent for raising good wheat."

Ray Anderson of Circleville, who has a grain inspection office with headquarters in Columbus, had cheering comment on wheat prospects. He said:

"The folks in Indiana and Illinois, and other parts of Ohio, talk about their wheat—but if there's an earlier spot that looks as good as Pickaway County this year I haven't seen it."

"We traveled late last week up to Indiana to visit relatives, and after I left the Circleville district I didn't even see a combine!"

ANDERSON said the local wheat he has seen so far looks "awfully good." He said he has heard reports of drought damage, but has yet to notice anything serious along this line on the wheat moved in so far.

Bell Phone Co. Tax Payment Said Too High

COLUMBUS (AP)—Cities protesting the Ohio Bell Telephone Co.'s requested $8,913,000 annual rate increase question Ohio Bell's income tax payments made jointly with its parent company, American Telephone Telegraph.

Richard O. Gantz, assistant Akron law director, contended the company probably paid more than its share of income taxes for the whole system. The hearing is before the state utilities commission.

Gantz questioned Francis E. Mott of Cleveland, assistant comptroller of Ohio Bell, who said American Telephone & Telegraph Co. saved $9,700,000 in 1952 by filing a consolidated federal income tax return.

Mott said the consolidated return, which included Ohio Bell taxes due the government, did not save Ohio Bell anything. Mott said he thought AT&T was entitled to all the savings.

Ohio Bell says it needs the rate increase to continue expansion and cover increased operating costs.

Protesting cities claim the increase is exorbitant and question the basis on which the proposed increase was figured.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today confirmed President Eisenhower's nomination of William H. Brett of Alliance, Ohio, to be director of the mint for five years.

Rival Guatemalan Chiefs Sign Pact

Monzon To Head New Government For 15 Days Prior To Election

SAN SALVADOR (AP)—Guatemalan rebel leader Carlos Castillo Armas and government chief Efigenio Monzon signed a peace pact here early today to end their country's two-week-old civil war.

Authoritative sources said the peace treaty provided for a new five-man military junta (Guatemala's fourth government this week) with Col. Castillo a member but with Col. Monzon heading it for the next 15 days.

After that, it was reported, the junta will elect a "permanent" chief.

The junta reportedly will be made up of two of the rebels—Castillo and his "defense minister," Col. Enrique Oliva, and three members of the previous government—Monzon, Foreign Minister Col. Mauricio Dubois and Defense Minister Col. Jose Luis Cruz Salazar.

Observers here figured Castillo, during the two-week period, would seek to win the allegiance of one of the latter pair so that he could eventually head the junta.

THE NEW JUNTA reportedly will fly to the Guatemalan capital at 11 a. m. tomorrow to take over.

Awaiting them there was still more trouble, from Communist supporters of deposed President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman who were reported inciting peasants outside the capital to rise against the country's new rulers.

The Red leaders, who fled to the hills after Arbenz's downfall, were reported inflaming the peasantry with stories that the new regime

Special Farmer Relief Plan Loses In Senate Tax Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration forces today beat down in the senate an amendment to the tax revision bill designed to give a substantial benefit to farmers on purchases of farm equipment. The vote was 65-15.

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo.), floor manager for the bill who fought the proposal, asserted it would cost $540 million in revenue in the next year. Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.), chief sponsor of the amendment, disputed this, offering the opinion the loss would not be more than $100 million.

The action was the first important test vote in what Senate leaders hoped would be the final day of debate on the tax measure, key item in President Eisenhower's 1954 legislative program. This is the fifth day of debate on it.

The Douglas amendment, co-sponsored by Sens. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Gillette (D-Ia.), would have permitted a farmer to write off the entire cost of a piece of his farm equipment, in one year on his taxes, up to a limit of 25 per cent of his gross income.

would take away the lands the previous leftist government had turned over to them.

Army and police headquarters in Guatemala City acknowledged they were unable to meet demands for help against uprisings outside the capital.

Farm state members backing the plan thus staged a comeback in strength after being forced on the defensive yesterday by an Eisenhower Administration drive to keep a compromise flexible price support plan in the bill.

The House today also approved a provision in the controversial farm bill raising dairy price supports to 80 per cent of parity—5 per cent above the level ordered last April by Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

The anti-Administration forces planned to seek a showdown roll-call vote later in the day in their efforts to continue mandatory high farm price props another year at 90 per cent of parity. They had suffered a surprising setback when the House tentatively approved the compromise calling for flexible props at from 82 1/2 to 90 per cent.

The House yesterday rejected both fixed high supports and the Eisenhower administration program of flexible supports, and voted for a compromise put forward by House leaders. But the standing-vote decision could be reversed in a formal showdown rollcall scheduled before tonight.

Ninety-two members didn't take part in the standing vote when the House yesterday approved 179-164 a compromise price support amendment to the farm bill offered by Rep. Harrison (R-Neb.) with the backing of GOP House leaders.

INSTEAD OF the administration's program of flexible supports at 75 to 90 per cent of parity, the compromise calls for flexible supports between 82 1/2 and 90 per cent of parity.

Same Story: Weather To Continue Hot

CHICAGO (AP)—More hot weather broiled broad areas of the country today, with 90-plus readings in most of the Southland.

There were hot spots over the South Central and Southeastern States and along the Atlantic Seaboard as far north as Washington, D. C. There was no break in the heat over the Southwest desert region while temperatures were on the way up over the Midwest.

The coolest areas were from the Pacific Northwest eastward into Montana and North Dakota.

Temperatures climbed to 104 in Vicksburg, Miss., yesterday equalling the record for July. It was 103 in Birmingham, 102 in Fort Worth, 101 in Nashville and Shreveport and 100 in Knoxville. The nation's top mark was 110 in Gila Bend, Ariz., a desert town.

There were showers over many sections of the country yesterday but the only thunderstorm activity reported early today was over the Northern and Central Plains. Except for fog in sections of New England, fair weather prevailed in other areas.

A windstorm yesterday struck at Fort Worth's northern edge wrecking 35 to 40 airplanes at a loss estimated at $1 1/2 million.

Truman Recovery Due To Be Slow

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Former President Truman's recovery from his illness apparently will be slow.

In the latest report on his recuperation, a Research Hospital spokesman said last night he was "progressing well but slowly." The spokesman added that his doctors agree that with such a devastating illness he cannot be expected to respond quickly.

Truman's gall bladder and appendix were removed June 20. Secondary infections and unfavorable reaction to drugs gave him a temporary setback a week after the operation and for a time his condition was critical.

Rio Grande Flood Ending

River Holds Secret Of Actual Death Toll

EAGLE PASS, Tex. (AP)—The Rio Grande was back in its banks today, its receding waters carrying the secret of how many died and leaving mounds of foul, disease-breeding mud.

Hidden in the muck and in the draining waters was the answer to whether the best available figures (62 dead, 90 to 400 missing) fall short of the truth.

President Eisenhower declared the stricken borderland eligible for disaster loans. Gov. Allan Shivers' own state disaster task force flew to the border to work with the federal people. The Red Cross, the Salvation Army and individuals had little rest.

Clothing, food, medicine and money were on the way.

The need was greatest across the river in Piedras Negras, whose announced toll of 38 dead and 90 missing may be a mockery. One Mexican army major said the dead there may number more than 400.

NUEVO LAREDO, sister Mexican city of Laredo, Tex., counted its first dead—the bodies of five members of a family identified only as Gomez. They were recovered yesterday.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Columbus is chuck full of veterans and their wives today attending Ohio's 34th annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The encampment, which began yesterday, will continue through Sunday.

An administrative meeting discussed a court decision ruling unconstitutional money grants by the Ohio General Assembly to veterans organizations. Loss of state funds could "bankrupt the VFW," Municipal Judge Joseph Brueggeman of Cincinnati, past department commander, told the meeting.

Third Charge Placed Against Hurt Motorist

A third accusation has been placed against a 42-year old Harrisburg, Pa., man being held in connection with the traffic death of George A. Hook, 90, former mayor of Ashville. William Harpster has been accused of reckless operation of a motor vehicle, in addition to second degree manslaughter and driving left of center.

The revelation came from Municipal Court where the affidavits, signed by Deputy Sheriff Carl K. Radcliff, were filed Thursday. Harpster is still in Berger Hospital in fair condition as the result of injuries he received in the two-car collision Wednesday.

Harpster's condition Friday morning was listed as fair by hospital authorities. He has a fracture of his left hip in addition to multiple lacerations.

Also injured, but reported in improved condition by the hospital, is Hook's son, Floyd, 63, driver of one of the cars. He has a skull fracture and facial lacerations.

THE ACCIDENT occurred 1.5 miles north of Circleville on Route 23 at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday. Harpster was returning southbound from Columbus. He had a hotel room here. The Hooks were on their way toward Ashville from Circleville. The cars collided head on.

Harpster's car was found by the Sheriff's Department and State Patrol on the wrong side of the highway over a yellow line. The left front wheel of his car was six inches from the opposite berm of the highway according to authorities.

JP Accepts Fine Paid Belatedly

COLDWATER, Mich. (AP)—J. J. Birton of Dearborn was a year and a half late, but Justice of the Peace B. E. Taylor thought it was better than never.

Birton was fined $15 on a traffic charge in November 1952 before Justice Taylor. All he had was $5, and Justice Taylor accepted his promise for the rest.

In yesterday's mail was a money order for $10.

Special Farmer Relief Plan Loses In Senate Tax Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration forces today beat down in the senate an amendment to the tax revision bill designed to give a substantial benefit to farmers on purchases of farm equipment. The vote was 65-15.

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo.), floor manager for the bill who fought the proposal, asserted it would cost $540 million in revenue in the next year. Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.), chief sponsor of the amendment, disputed this, offering the opinion the loss would not be more than $100 million.

The action was the first important test vote in what Senate leaders hoped would be the final day of debate on the tax measure, key item in President Eisenhower's 1954 legislative program. This is the fifth day of debate on it.

The Douglas amendment, cosponsored by Sens. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Gillette (D-Ia.), would have permitted a farmer to write off the entire cost of a piece of his farm equipment, in one year on his taxes, up to a limit of 25 per cent of his gross income.

DOUGLAS SAID farmers now must take depreciation on their new equipment over periods of 10 to 20 years.

Several senators said they planned to vote against the giant tax revision measure on final passage. But its approval, pretty much in the form sought by President Eisenhower, seemed assured.

Sen. Long (D-La.), revived the income tax cut issue yesterday with a plan whose effect was in between two earlier amendments, one Democratic and the other Republican - sponsored, which had gone down to defeat by identical 49-46 votes Wednesday.

Long proposed to give every taxpayer a $20 cut by a credit on his return—a $1.4 billion annual tax reduction.

But he lost 50-33 after Millikin rallied all but two Republicans present against it and got help from nine Democrats.

Ike-Backers Fail To End Wheat Payoff

Final Showdown Vote On Support Program Nearing In House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today beat down by voice vote an attempt to strike from the politically explosive farm bill a proposed two-price plan for wheat.

Farm state members backing the plan thus staged a comeback in strength after being forced on the defensive yesterday by an Eisenhower Administration drive to keep a compromise flexible price support plan in the bill.

The House today also approved a provision in the controversial farm bill raising dairy price supports to 80 per cent of parity—5 per cent above the level ordered last April by Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

The anti-Administration forces planned to seek a showdown roll-call vote later in the day in their efforts to continue mandatory high farm price props another year at 90 per cent of parity. They had suffered a surprising setback when the House tentatively approved the compromise calling for flexible props at from 82 1/2 to 90 per cent.

The House yesterday rejected both fixed high supports and the Eisenhower administration program of flexible supports, and voted for a compromise put forward by House leaders. But the standing-vote decision could be reversed in a formal showdown rollcall scheduled before tonight.

Ninety-two members didn't take part in the standing vote when the House yesterday approved 179-164 a compromise price support amendment to the farm bill offered by Rep. Harrison (R-Neb.) with the backing of GOP House leaders.

INSTEAD OF the administration's program of flexible supports at 75 to 90 per cent of parity, the compromise calls for flexible supports between 82 1/2 and 90 per cent of parity.

Same Story: Weather To Continue Hot

CHICAGO (AP)—More hot weather broiled broad areas of the country today, with 90-plus readings in most of the Southland.

There were hot spots over the South Central and Southeastern States and along the Atlantic Seaboard as far north as Washington, D. C. There was no break in the heat over the Southwest desert region while temperatures were on the way up over the Midwest.

The coolest areas were from the Pacific Northwest eastward into Montana and North Dakota.

Temperatures climbed to 104 in Vicksburg, Miss., yesterday equalling the record for July. It was 103 in Birmingham, 102 in Fort Worth, 101 in Nashville and Shreveport and 100 in Knoxville. The nation's top mark was 110 in Gila Bend, Ariz., a desert town.

There were showers over many sections of the country yesterday but the only thunderstorm activity reported early today was over the Northern and Central Plains. Except for fog in sections of New England, fair weather prevailed in other areas.

A windstorm yesterday struck at Fort Worth's northern edge wrecking 35 to 40 airplanes at a loss estimated at $1 1/2 million.

Truman Recovery Due To Be Slow

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Former President Truman's recovery from his illness apparently will be slow.

In the latest report on his recuperation, a Research Hospital spokesman said last night he was "progressing well but slowly." The spokesman added that his doctors agree that with such a devastating illness he cannot be expected to respond quickly.

Truman's gall bladder and appendix were removed June 20. Secondary infections and unfavorable reaction to drugs gave him a temporary setback a week after the operation and for a time his condition was critical.

Rio Grande Flood Ending

River Holds Secret Of Actual Death Toll

EAGLE PASS, Tex. (AP)—The Rio Grande was back in its banks today, its receding waters carrying the secret of how many died and leaving mounds of foul, disease-breeding mud.

Hidden in the muck and in the draining waters was the answer to whether the best available figures (62 dead, 90 to 400 missing) fall short of the truth.

President Eisenhower declared the stricken borderland eligible for disaster loans. Gov. Allan Shivers' own state disaster task force flew to the border to work with the federal people. The Red Cross, the Salvation Army and individuals had little rest.

Clothing, food, medicine and money were on the way.

The need was greatest across the river in Piedras Negras, whose announced toll of 38 dead and 90 missing may be a mockery. One Mexican army major said the dead there may number more than 400.

NUEVO LAREDO, sister Mexican city of Laredo, Tex., counted its first dead—the bodies of five members of a family identified only as Gomez. They were recovered yesterday.

Columbus Hosts VFW Convention

COLUMBUS (AP)—Columbus is chock full of veterans and their wives today attending Ohio's 34th annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The encampment, which began yesterday, will continue through Sunday.

An administrative meeting discussed a court decision ruling unconstitutional money grants by the Ohio General Assembly to veterans organizations. Loss of state funds could "bankrupt the VFW," Municipal Judge Joseph Brueggeman of Cincinnati, past department commander, told the meeting.

Banks Get Calls For Statements

WASHINGTON (AP)—The comptroller of the currency issued today a call for a statement of the condition of all national banks at the close of business June 30.

Ohio's banking superintendent issued a call for the condition of all state banks the same date.

Ohio Vote Noted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Both Ohio senators, Bricker (R) and Burke (D), yesterday voted for an amendment partially knocking out a proposal to ease taxes on corporation dividends.

mise, the House shouted down an amendment by Rep. Heselton (R-Mass) which would have enacted the administration program.

The contested price support feature of the bill applies only to six basic commodities—corn, wheat, rice, tobacco, cotton and peanuts—all of which are now supported at 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a legally set price standard said to give farmers a fair return on their production in relation to their costs.

Still to be taken up by the House among other things, are proposals to raise dairy price supports from their existing level of 75 per cent of parity to 80 per cent. Secretary of Agriculture Benson lowered the dairy support rate from 90 to 75 per cent April 1.

The standing vote yesterday went pretty much according to party lines, with only 18 or 20 Republicans voting against the compromise and about as many Democrats favoring it.

Nebraska Loses Second Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Hugh Butler, 76, of Nebraska died last night, the fourth U. S. senator and the second from his state to succumb this year.

Butler, who had been elected to his third six-year term two years ago, suffered a stroke Wednesday night. He was taken to the naval hospital at nearby Bethesda, Md., yesterday morning and died there about 11:30 p. m. last night.

The day before he had been active in the Senate, apparently in good health.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — Grains mostly headed downward on the Board of Trade today with corn coming in for some particularly heavy pounding.

Ike Backers Fail To End Wheat Payoff

mise, the House shouted down an amendment by Rep. Heseltun (R-Mass) which would have enacted the administration program.

The contested price support feature of the bill applies only to six basic commodities—corn, wheat, rice, tobacco, cotton and peanuts—all of which are now supported at 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a legally set price standard said to give farmers a fair return on their production in relation to their costs.

Still to be taken up by the House among other things, are proposals to raise dairy price supports from their existing level of 75 per cent of parity to 80 per cent. Secretary of Agriculture Benson lowered the dairy support rate from 90 to 75 per cent April 1.

The standing vote yesterday went pretty much according to party lines, with only 18 or 20 Republicans voting against the compromise and about as many Democrats favoring it.

Nebraska Loses Second Senator

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican Sen. Hugh Butler, 76, of Nebraska died last night, the fourth U. S. senator and the second from his state to succumb this year.

Butler, who had been elected to his third six-year term two years ago, suffered a stroke Wednesday night. He was taken to the naval hospital at nearby Bethesda, Md., yesterday morning and died there about 11:30 p. m. last night.

The day before he had been active in the Senate, apparently in good health.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP)—Grains mostly headed downward on the Board of Trade today with corn coming in for some particularly heavy pounding.

Selling in corn was based on news the agriculture department had lowered the basis on which it was offering corn to exporters, as well as yesterday's move to offer off-grade corn at the market price.

Wheat near noon was 14 1/2 lower, July $1.93 1/2, corn 1/4-1/4 lower, July $1.57 1/2, oats 1/4 to 1 cent lower, July 75 1/2, rye unchanged, July 99 1/2, soybeans 3/4 lower to 6 1/4 higher, July $3.81, and lard unchanged to 10 cents a hundred pounds higher, July $15.80.

All Roads Lead To Ashville On Gala Weekend

All roads will lead to Ashville this coming weekend for most Pickaway County residents. Ashville is the traditional center for the district's Fourth of July celebrations.

Special arrangements have been made this year for a program that's bigger and better than any in the past. The festivities open next Saturday and continue on the two following days.

First event on the program will be the Little Miss Fourth of July contest and parade starting at 2 p. m. Saturday. Then the parade and contest for the older girls—for the title of Miss Fourth of July—is scheduled Saturday evening at 7:30.

A Western Horse Show and Rodeo is the big feature set for Sunday.

AND ON Monday at 11 a. m. the big Fourth of July will get under way in Ashville. A band concert begins at 1 p. m. and the big evening dance swings into tune at 8:30.

Sprinkled in among the main events during the three-day program will be a carnival at Community Park, fish fries, concessions and rides. And at midnight on Monday a gala display of fireworks will send another Fourth of July into history in traditional manner.

Meanwhile, a quiet holiday is in prospect for Circleville Monday. Early reports indicate that business activity will be reduced to those places that cater especially to the tourist and holiday customers. No big public program is planned.

The Circleville Herald will not be published Monday, thus enabling all its members to participate in Ashville's record-breaking program.

Last Appearance For Greyhound?

CHICAGO (AP)—The incomparable Greyhound of harness racing fame strutted around the track at Sportsman's park last night in what may be his last appearance.

The big gray trotter was celebrating his 22nd birthday. He is the holder of 15 world records in harness racing.

The famous trotter's age of 22 years is about equivalent to the 85 years of his owner, Col. Edward J. Baker, who bought him as a yearling in 1933 for only $900.

Before he retired in 1940, Greyhound had run a record 1:55 1/4 mile in 1939 and had beaten the two-minute mile 22 times. Altogether, he ran 78 heats, winning 71 of them, finishing second five times, third once and fourth once.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-five years from now—if by then the Communist wave has receded or is lapping at American shores—the cause may be traced back to this country's decision, or lack of it, on its dilemma of 1954.

The dilemma is what to do about the Communist threat in Southeast Asia where the French, in Indochina, are melting under the torrid drive of the Communist-led Vietminh.

What decision has this country made so far? None. It is going to plan with the British and other Allies for united action in Southeast Asia against the Communists if they—

If they do what? Nobody knows.

At this moment the United States doesn't seem to know whether a line will have to be drawn in Indochina against the Communists, or perhaps outside Indochina because that country couldn't be defended any longer.

There is even no certainty that a line will ever be drawn or that the Allies will in fact ever act together, or separately, to keep Southeast Asia out of communism.

Indochina has three states: Viet Nam, Laos, Cambodia. The fighting between French and the Vietminh is in Viet Nam. The French are being smashed. They may be forced to yield all of Viet Nam unless the Allies intervene. There is no sign the Allies have any such intention.

If Viet Nam falls to the Communists, Laos and Cambodia may fall next unless the Allies step in and tell the Communists: "No further." There's no sign they intend to do that either.

Once the Communists got Indochina, they could pump supplies across the border to help revolutionary Communists in neighboring states like Burma and Thailand, just as China helped the Vietminh.

The lack of decision by America and its allies stirred Sen. Knowland of California yesterday. Knowland, the Republican leader in the Senate, had urged the United States to bomb China during the Korean War.

Less than a month ago he said the United States will have to "face up to the fact" it may have to fight in Indochina. Yesterday looking at Viet Nam slowly falling to the Communists and little being done to stop it, he said:

"Where do we go from here? How many more Communist victories must be gained in Asia before the free world recognizes the danger?"

He continued: Will the non-Communist countries cling to their feeling it is not worth the risk of fighting when it comes to Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Burma, Malaya, India, Pakistan, Formosa, Japan, Indonesia, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand?

When the crisis came in Indochina—although all year the Eisenhower administration had been talking of the importance of Indochina and how, if it fell, all Southeast Asia stood in peril—the President's advisers were divided on what to do.

Meanwhile, China, the main enemy, could stand aloof, sending in supplies to the Vietminh, letting the Vietminh do the dying. If China sent in her own troops, the United States would face another decision: whether to bomb China. That might bring in Russia, on China's side, and start World War III.

But, as Knowland noted, if the United States never moves in anywhere, the Communists in time will try to take over everywhere. The Eisenhower administration will have to make a decision someday.

Lesson In Law Given Prisoner In Freedom Bid

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Gerald Mastracchio, 31, serving 15 years for attempted robbery, got a lesson in law yesterday from Judge Fred B. Perkins.

Serving as his own attorney, Mastracchio went before Superior Court with a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for his release from prison.

He said two other men had confessed the attempted robbery for which he is serving time so he should be freed.

Judge Perkins explained to Mastracchio he drafted the wrong petition because he was not attacking the legality of the trial but was, in effect, claiming new evidence. What he should have brought, the judge said, was "a writ of error coram nobis."

Mastracchio went back to prison, presumably to draft a new petition.

Ohio Fuel Adding To Storage Areas

Development of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company's seventh underground storage area for natural gas has been announced by James W. Cole, local manager for the firm. The new underground area is in Guernsey and Coshocton counties.

It will increase Ohio Fuel's storage capacity six billion cubic feet. Cole also disclosed that the Holmes Storage Project, started by the firm last year, is being doubled in size. It is located in Holmes, Ashland and Wayne counties.

Work on the Holmes Project will increase the company's underground storage facilities by an additional eight and one-half billion cubic feet.

Ohio Fuel will spend about $4.5 million this year on the two projects, and for drilling additional storage wells in other sections of the state, Cole said. Underground gas storage is important to Pickaway County and other areas served by Ohio Fuel since more than half of the supply available comes from this source on severe winter days.

He appeared in live broadcasts of a national network from 1937 to 1951, performing the auctioneer's chant.

Way A Man's Wallet Is Carried Accurately Reflects Personality

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Did you know that the way you carry your wallet reflects your personality almost as much as the way you wear your face?

Howard N. Cooper, a psychiatrist, has analyzed the pocket-book-packing habits of American men and says they are "probably as good a test for individual psychological factors as the projective rorschach."

Editor's note: What is a projective rorschach—a protruding racehorse?

Boyle's note: No, it's an ink blot a psychiatrist makes. When he asks you what does the shape of the blot remind you of, and you say it reminds you of a girl, he makes a note in his book: "Patient has girls on his mind."

Editor's note: But what if the ink blot isn't shaped like a girl?

Boyle's note: How can you make an ink blot that doesn't look like some girl?

Dr. Cooper (to get back to the subject) found that many men today periodically shift their wallet from the back pocket of their trousers to their inside coat pocket.

"That is a sign they feel insecure about people as well as worried about the safety of their cash," he said.

"On the other hand, a man who carries his money in a metal clip separate from his wallet is less concerned over material wealth. But he is the type who hates to have the routine of his life upset. He is less afraid of losing his cash than his driver's license."

Dr. Cooper said the man who carries no wallet at all is either completely free and easy or so insecure that "he fights it by over compensating—by pretending he is carefree about money."

"A fourth type, the fellow who shifts his wallet from pocket to pocket haphazardly, is probably in an emotional flux about what money and other things in his life really mean to him. He's unsettled."

The psychiatrist said that the guy who keeps a cluttered wallet, full of cards he never throws away, is like a stamp collector.

"He may be stingy, rigid of mind and stubborn. He is likely to be generous only in spurts. But a man with too neat a wallet may have even more of a withholding personality than one with a messy wallet."

their pocket book for any situation—whether it's buying a newspaper, getting weighed, or tipping a waiter.

"They don't like to take the world as it comes," said Dr. Cooper. "They want to be prepared and they don't like to be surprised. They prefer a planned life."

It isn't as easy to tell a woman's personality by the way she carries her cash.

"The question of what is chic or fashionable complicates the picture," said the psychiatrist. "Custom dictates more what a woman does."

"But a woman who carries her money in her bosom is quite likely to be an exhibitionist. She keeps it there not for safety, but to draw attention to herself."

Can a girl choose a husband by the way he carries his wallet?

"Well the best husband," said Dr. Cooper, "is the one who carries a wallet full of money at all times and opens the wallet at her slightest whim."

How about the thoughtless guy who marries and still keeps the picture of a former girl friend in his wallet?

"That probably shows an impulse toward self-destruction," smiled Dr. Cooper.

Lesson In Law Given Prisoner In Freedom Bid

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Gerald Mastracchio, 31, serving 15 years for attempted robbery, got a lesson in law yesterday from Judge Fred B. Perkins.

Serving as his own attorney, Mastracchio went before Superior Court with a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for his release from prison.

He said two other men had confessed the attempted robbery for which he is serving time so he should be freed.

Judge Perkins explained to Mastracchio he drafted the wrong petition because he was not attacking the legality of the trial but was, in effect, claiming new evidence. What he should have brought, the judge said, was "a writ of error coram nobis."

Mastracchio went back to prison, presumably to draft a new petition.

Ohio Fuel Adding To Storage Areas

Development of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company's seventh underground storage area for natural gas has been announced by James W. Cole, local manager for the firm. The new underground area is in Guernsey and Coshocton counties.

It will increase Ohio Fuel's storage capacity six billion cubic feet. Cole also disclosed that the Holmes Storage Project, started by the firm last year, is being doubled in size. It is located in Holmes, Ashland and Wayne counties.

Work on the Holmes Project will increase the company's underground storage facilities by an additional eight and one-half billion cubic feet.

Ohio Fuel will spend about $4.5 million this year on the two projects, and for drilling additional storage wells in other sections of the state, Cole said. Underground gas storage is important to Pickaway County and other areas served by Ohio Fuel since more than half of the supply available comes from this source on severe winter days.

Famous Tobacco Auctioneer Dies

ROBERSONVILLE, N. C. (AP)—F. E. Boone Sr., the man who made familiar to America the chant of the tobacco auctioneer, died at his home yesterday.

The 61-year-old Winchester, Ky., native had spent 40 years as a tobacco auctioneer and gentleman farmer. He died of heart disease.

He appeared in live broadcasts of a national network from 1937 to 1951, performing the auctioneer's chant.

Way A Man's Wallet Is Carried Accurately Reflects Personality

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Did you know that the way you carry your wallet reflects your personality almost as much as the way you wear your face?

Howard N. Cooper, a psychiatrist, has analyzed the pocket-book-packing habits of American men and says they are "probably as good a test for individual psychological factors as the projective roschach."

Editor's note: What is a projective roschach—a protruding racehorse?

Boyle's note: No, it's an ink blot a psychiatrist makes. When he asks you what does the shape of the blot remind you of, and you say it reminds you of a girl, he makes a note in his book: "Patient has girls on his mind."

Editor's note: But what if the ink blot isn't shaped like a girl?

Boyle's note: How can you make an ink blot that doesn't look like some girl?

Dr. Cooper (to get back to the subject) found that many men today periodically shift their wallet from the back pocket of their trousers to their inside coat pocket.

"That is a sign they feel insecure about people as well as worried about the safety of their cash," he said.

"On the other hand, a man who carries his money in a metal clip separate from his wallet is less concerned over material wealth. But he is the type who hates to have the routine of his life upset. He is less afraid of losing his cash than his driver's license."

Dr. Cooper said the man who carries no wallet at all is either completely free and easy or so insecure that "he fights it by over compensating—by pretending he is careless about money."

"A fourth type, the fellow who shifts his wallet from pocket to pocket haphazardly, is probably in an emotional flux about what money and other things in his life really mean to him. He's unsettled."

The psychiatrist said that the guy who keeps a cluttered wallet, full of cards he never throws away, is like a stamp collector.

"He may be stingy, rigid of mind and stubborn. He is likely to be generous only in spurts. But a man with too neat a wallet may have even more of a withholding personality than one with a messy wallet."

their pocket book for any situation—whether it's buying a newspaper, getting weighed, or tipping a waiter.

"They don't like to take the world as it comes," said Dr. Cooper. "They want to be prepared and they don't like to be surprised. They prefer a planned life."

It isn't as easy to tell a woman's personality by the way she carries her cash.

"The question of what is chic or fashionable complicates the picture," said the psychiatrist. "Custom dictates more what a woman does."

"But a woman who carries her money in her bosom is quite likely to be an exhibitionist. She keeps it there not for safety, but to draw attention to herself."

Can a girl choose a husband by the way he carries his wallet?

"Well the best husband," said Dr. Cooper, "is the one who carries a wallet full of money at all times and opens the wallet at her slightest whim."

How about the thoughtless guy who marries and still keeps the picture of a former girl friend in his wallet?

"That probably shows an impulse toward self-destruction," smiled Dr. Cooper.

Regional Slump Bolstered By District Blood Donors

Rallied to emergency efforts aimed at regaining ground lost in other regional counties, Pickaway County's Red Cross blood program has moved into the Summer lull with another highly impressive turnout for the bloodmobile.

In the collection here earlier this week, local donors gave 136 pints of blood. Approximately 155 persons reported they were willing to give, including 35 "walk-in cases"—the term applied to those who appear at the bloodmobile station without previous arrangements.

Figures for the last bloodmobile visit here until Fall were issued by Larry Goeller, vice-chairman of the organization which in recent months has turned a lagging effort into a record-breaking well-gearred machine. Chairman of the blood program is the Rev. Fred Ketner. Hundreds of persons share in the organization's work.

Highly successful turnouts drawn in recent months here have attracted commendable comments from statewide Red Cross spokesmen. Just prior to the latest bloodmobile visit, an emergency appeal asked that Pickaway County try to "salvage" some of the ground recently lost in other counties through a sharp drop in blood donations.

"WE'RE VERY much satisfied with the way the people responded this week," Goeller said. "The splendid turnout is all the more impressive when you consider how many people are busy on their farms and how many are already out of the district on their vacations."

"We appreciate very much all the help given by our army of volunteers. They've achieved something that should give each and every one of them the satisfaction of knowing they've helped save human lives."

"Pickaway County did its best to come to the help of the region as requested. We hope to resume the good work next fall."

The list of donors at the latest visit of the bloodmobile, along with the groups, firms or organizations they represented, was issued as follows:

40 Million Cars Expected On Road During Weekend

CHICAGO — Motorists able to get ahead of the crowd hit the highways early today for the long July 4 weekend.

Other thousands went to work with grips packed with sports clothes, ready to catch evening trains, buses and planes for summer resorts.

The National Safety Council es-

For some 430 of the highway travelers, this may be their last July 4 holiday weekend. The council estimates that number will be killed in crashes between 6 p.m. today and midnight Monday.

Jesus, Our Example and Lord

HE GREW AND WAXED STRONG, FILLED WITH WISDOM AND GRACE

Scripture—Luke 2:40-52.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WE TURN now from the dire warnings of the prophets prophesying dreadful punishment because of the sins of the children of Israel, to a lovely story of our Lord's childhood and youth. We have read it before, but, like the tale of His birth, it is ever new.

It is a story that will appeal to children of all ages as well as to those of us who are grown up. It can make even quite small ones think of their own homes and compare their conduct there with that of Christ when He was young. If the lovely picture of the small Boy growing up, obedient and helpful in His home is presented strongly enough, it may help the youngsters to follow His example.

And in this decade when the unlawful actions of older children are occupying so many newspaper headlines, and horrifying us, it might give some a change of heart and mind that will save them lasting shame in the future.

We know very little of Jesus' childhood after He and His parents came back to their home in Nazareth (about 90 miles from Jerusalem) after their flight to Egypt soon after Jesus' birth. He was three years old at that time, and Luke tells us, "The Child

He was preaching and teaching, men who tried to trap Him were astounded and shamed because He quoted the Scriptures to them.

However, to continue our story: "And when He was 12 years old they went up to Jerusalem," as they did every year at the feast of the Passover. This may not have been the first time Jesus had been taken to Jerusalem, as His parents went every year, but this time He was older and it probably meant more to Him.

"And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and His mother knew not of it."

At first they thought He must be with some of the company, and they looked for Him among their kinsfolk and acquaintances, but did not find Him. Then they turned back to Jerusalem, probably terrified that something harmful may have happened to the child. Three days they sought Him. Finally, in the temple, they found Him "sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them, and asking them questions."

What did the Boy Jesus ask them? We do not know, but the doctors must have been enthralled with this young Boy who was so interested and intelligent. "And when they saw Him, they

MEMORY VERSE

"The Child grew and waxed strong, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon Him."—Luke 2:40.

grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon Him."

It is, of course, natural for children to grow in body and in mind, but sometimes what we knew as a very sweet, tractable little child will, when we see him a few years later, have changed into a headless, disobedient, turbulent youngster.

What has happened? Is it the parents' fault? They are often told so. Is it just a natural condition which will pass as the years go on, and the child becomes wiser? In some cases the answer is yes; in others, no; he may grow more wilful, lawless and unmanageable.

Is it the result of the great war and continual violence recorded in the newspapers all over the world? Some blame the so-called "comic" books which depict crime in all its horrors and are sold cheaply in many places to children.

Jesus' home in Nazareth must have been a small, humble place. We know virtually nothing of His brothers and sisters growing up with Him. Were they too "growing in spirit and wisdom?" Jesus must have gone to school in the synagogue and learned to read and write and to know the Scriptures. And how well He learned the latter. Time after time, when were amazed, and His mother said unto Him, "Son, why hast Thou thus dealt with us? Behold, Thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing."

She did not scold or rave at Him for giving them trouble and grief. She spoke gently, sadly, we have no doubt, but gently, as Mary, the sweet mother, would speak. And He answered: How is it that ye sought Me? wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business?"

They did not understand His words, but He knew that He was preparing even at that early age, for His Father's work.

"And He went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them; but His mother kept all these sayings in her heart. And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

You remember that after Jesus' birth, with all the wonders that occurred then, that St. Luke tells us that Mary kept "all these things, and pondered them in her heart."

Mothers keep so many things that happen to their children, and "ponder them in their hearts." Blest are they who have happy things to call to mind when their children are grown and have left home.

Jesus, Our Example and Lord

HE GREW AND WAXED STRONG, FILLED WITH WISDOM AND GRACE

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WE TURN now from the dire warnings of the prophets prophesying dreadful punishment because of the sins of the children of Israel, to a lovely story of our Lord's childhood and youth. We have read it before, but, like the tale of His birth, it is ever new.

It is a story that will appeal to children of all ages as well as to those of us who are grown up. It can make even quite small ones think of their own homes and compare their conduct there with that of Christ when He was young. If the lovely picture of the small Boy growing up, obedient and helpful in His home is presented strongly enough, it may help the youngsters to follow His example.

And in this decade when the unlawful actions of older children are occupying so many newspaper headlines, and horrifying us, it might give some a change of heart and mind that will save them lasting shame in the future.

We know very little of Jesus' childhood after He and His parents came back to their home in Nazareth (about 90 miles from Jerusalem) after their flight to Egypt soon after Jesus' birth. He was three years old at that time, and Luke tells us, "The Child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon Him."—Luke 2:40.

It is, of course, natural for children to grow in body and in mind, but sometimes what we knew as a very sweet, tractable little child will, when we see him a few years later, have changed into a heedless, disobedient, turbulent youngster.

What has happened? Is it the parents' fault? They are often told so. Is it just a natural condition which will pass as the years go on, and the child becomes wiser? In some cases the answer is yes; in others, no; he may grow more willful, lawless and unmanageable.

Is it the result of the great war and continual violence recorded in the newspapers all over the world? Some blame the so-called "comic" books which depict crime in all its horrors and are sold cheaply in many places to children.

Jesus' home in Nazareth must have been a small, humble place. We know virtually nothing of His brothers and sisters growing up with Him. Were they too "growing in spirit and wisdom?" Jesus must have gone to school in the synagogue and learned to read and write and to know the Scriptures. And how well He learned the latter. Time after time, when were amazed, and His mother said unto Him, "Son, why hast Thou thus dealt with us? Behold, Thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing."

She did not scold or rave at Him for giving them trouble and grief. She spoke gently, sadly, we have no doubt, but gently, as Mary, the sweet mother, would speak. And He answered: "How is it that ye sought Me? wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business?"

They did not understand His words, but He knew that He was preparing even at that early age, for His Father's work.

"And He went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them; but His mother kept all these sayings in her heart. And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

You remember that after Jesus' birth, with all the wonders that occurred then, that St. Luke tells us that Mary kept "all these things, and pondered them in her heart."

Mothers keep so many things that happen to their children, and "ponder them in their hearts." Blessed are they who have happy things to call to mind when their children are grown and have left home.

BABY JETS

MANY A MILITARY pilot has complained, either privately or publicly, that planes were so overinstrumented that both pilot and plane performance suffered.

At the outset of World War II, the Japanese Zero was outclimbing and outperforming the best U. S. fighters. The Zero had an Achilles heel, however, lacking armor around the pilots or fuel tanks. Once manufacturers had put more power in American fighters the Zero was pretty much a dead duck.

The Navy has problems of launching and storing fighter planes and fighter bombers within the limited confines of carrier flight decks and hangar decks. So it has been probably more sensitive to the problem of overburdening its planes than was necessary for the Air Force. The Navy has now done something about it. Press and public have been shown a diminutive, needle-nosed fighter-bomber which looks like a midget alongside some of the newer carrier-based planes. Actually it is about half the size and weight, although the builders and designers claim it will perform a great many necessary chores, including carrying smaller versions of an atomic bomb.

Here is a reversal of a trend which began at the outset of World War II and is still in progress. With greater and greater speeds and altitudes called for, designers have had to remove a great many chores which the pilot would ordinarily perform. Instruments with hundreds of small vacuum tubes, miles of wiring, complicated relays, and heavy masses of computing machinery of various types do certain jobs more reliably and much faster than the human reflex. But the result was a cry for more and more power to lift the greater weight.

The midget jet meets not only Navy carrier requirements for a midget fighter but it is relatively easy to produce in quantity. Such a prospect fits right into the planning of NATO air commanders.

VOICE WITH A CHISEL

A NEW YORK legislative committee is out to determine if the communist is fattening his party treasury by muscling in on the racket of soliciting charity by telephone. It would be a fertile field for the subversive as well as the immoral.

The same committee exposed wasteful and profiteering charity rackets and won legislation forcing registration and identification of solicitors. It is now studying the advisability of completely outlawing telephone solicitations by professional fund raisers. The New York committee's chairman says it now is ready to question officers of organizations suspected of diverting charity collections to propaganda uses.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell's allegedly "arbitrary" management of the Democratic party's affairs since the disastrous 1952 election has stirred a general demand for his removal before or immediately after next fall's Congressional contests. The organization's oldsters do not want to enter the 1956 presidential campaign with him at the helm. For a stopgap chairman chosen for personal rather than political reasons by a badly defeated candidate, Adlai E. Stevenson, Mitchell has behaved in a more czarist manner than such a beloved and skilled boss as James A. Farley ever dared. He is winning no friends or delegates for Stevenson, who shows every sign of willingness to accept another nomination two years hence.

ROOSEVELT — Mitchell has alienated the still influential Roosevelt dynasty by his refusal to support James Roosevelt in his California primary battle. He has antagonized the liberal wing known as the Americans for Democratic Action by suggesting that they mute their clamorous trumpets, although his conservative enemies share his attitude on this question. Mitchell's known sympathy for the Supreme Court's decision against segregation in the public schools threatens to reopen the schism which the Roosevelt-Lehman-Humphrey "radicals" created with their demand for a "loyalty" oath at the 1952 national convention.

His attitude tends to temper Southern Democrats' bitterness toward the Republicans because the ruling was handed down by an Eisenhower-appointed Chief Justice, Earl Warren.

FAVORITISM — The latest complaint, and perhaps the most disturbing, is that he shows favoritism in disbursing funds to congressional candidates in the forthcoming elections. Mitchell denies that he has been partial, but Democrats in southern states who voted for Ike insist that he is holding out on them.

Finally, New York Democrats believe that he is backing Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. in their gubernatorial campaign. They think he seeks to regain favor with the Roosevelt faction, balancing his snub of James. And many prominent New Yorkers think F. D. R. Jr. would be a weak candidate, preferring Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York or Justice Charles W. Froessel.

SERIOUS — Although Mitchell's repudiation of James Roosevelt and Rep. Robert L. Condon of California has attracted more national attention, his stubborn refusal to recognize Wright Morrow of Houston as Democratic national committeeman for Texas has had far more serious consequences. Like Gov. Allan Shivers and the Texas electorate, Morrow openly backed Eisenhower.

But when Morrow appeared at a recent meeting of the national committee in Washington, Mitchell held that the position was vacant and refused to recognize him. Morrow's friends point out that he was confirmed for a four-year term by the 1952 national convention, following his selection by the Texas state committee.

When Morrow declared for Eisenhower during the 1952 campaign, he tendered his resignation to the state committee on three different occasions, but it was unanimously rejected. So far, the Texas organization has refused to agree with Mitchell.

These Days

Senator George Malone of Nevada is the only professional engineer in the United States Senate and therefore he brings into that body a point of view which is very different from that of the lawyer. An engineer is trained to deal with facts without poetic license; a lawyer is trained to defend a thesis or to advocate a cause.

The problem that faces Malone's Committee is: precisely what is the situation of the United States with regard to minerals, metals and other strategic materials. This Committee has produced a tremendous volume of technical data, difficult to read at times but all of it extremely important. The assumption has heretofore been that the United States was short of certain strategic materials which could only be made available by overseas commerce which could be shut down swiftly in the event of war. For instance, tin and rubber from Malaya might be withheld from us should Red China come into possession of that country.

According to the Malone report, 77 minerals and materials, included in this report, are vital to the maintenance of the American economy and its prowess as a military force. It lays down this finding absolutely:

"The Western Hemisphere will be the only dependable source of the critical raw materials in the event of an all-out world war.

"The delivery of any such critical materials to this Nation across a major ocean during such a conflict will be highly 'problematical'."

This position is unquestionable in the nature of modern warfare. The oceans can be closed down until one power or the other gains a total victory. The schnorkel submarine, the atomic submarine and the long-distance airplane make the ocean lanes of traffic unsuitable in war. The Pacific Ocean was unsafe for the transportation of supplies of rubber and tin during World War II, with the result that the United States was forced to develop a synthetic rubber industry based on the Baruch Report. It will be forgotten, of course, how Fiorello La Guardia desperately collected tin cans in the hope of meeting the tin crisis, cans which eventually helped to fill the Jersey meadows.

The hope of meeting future crises is in a hemispheric cultivation of mineral production and the means for the transportation of minerals and their products without the perils of the seas. The "Europe First" attitude of the State Department resulted not only in the loss of China but also in the partial abandonment of the Latin American countries. This Committee lays emphasis on the importance of regarding the Western Hemisphere and cultivating its economy as a unit. It says:

"It is imperative to the security of this Nation and to the nations of the Western Hemisphere that they foster the greatest measure of self-sufficiency in the production of the critical materials.

"It is vital to our domestic welfare, economy and security that maximum economic production be maintained within our borders.

"The Western Hemisphere can be defended.

"The Western Hemisphere can be made self-sufficient in the production of the critical materials which are essential in war and in peace."

Irritable Colon Results From Emotional Upsets

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EMOTIONAL upsets are usually responsible for an irritable colon.

The colon or large intestine of man is controlled by two sets of nerves. One set promotes the contraction of the intestinal wall with the production of mucus and an increase of circulation to the lining membrane of the intestine. The opposing system promotes a decrease in mucus secretions.

The Normal State

In the normal person these two parts of the nervous system maintain a balance and the bowels work normally. However, when one part of the nervous system gains preponderance over the other, various symptoms will appear.

The part that promotes contraction of the bowel wall and the production of mucus is the one most likely to gain the upper hand. When this occurs, there is an increased activity of the bowel, with over-production of mucus. This condition is sometimes called mucous colitis or irritable colon.

Some Disturbances

The patient complains of painful intestinal spasms and hindrance to the passage of the bowel contents. He suffers alternately from constipation and diarrhea, with much discomfort and distention of the bowel from gas. He sometimes feels as if he cannot have a bowel movement because of an obstruction at the outlet.

Many of these people fear that they have a serious disease of the bowel such as cancer. Their emotional stability is usually less than average and they are constantly anxious and insecure.

Nervous Reaction

A person who suffers from this type of disease should be made to realize that he may have these attacks of spastic colitis whenever he gets nervous, just as he may blush involuntarily when he is embarrassed.

If he can learn a philosophy of relaxation, perhaps by developing some hobbies or removing stress from his life, the symptoms from an irritable colon will usually disappear. Sometimes the emotional difficulty is so deep-seated that the help of a psychiatrist is urgently needed. The use of anti-spasmodic drugs with mild sedatives under the physician's directions is often of help.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. P.: If penicillin is given by mouth, will it have less likelihood of causing severe allergic reactions in the patient?

Answer: Yes, this is true, although the reason why this happens is not known.

Nurse Lady

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

Distributed by King Features Syndicate. Copyright, 1953, by Adelaide Humphries.

SYNOPSIS

Norman Brandt and nurse Cynthia Doyle had first met at the scene of an accident near Washington, D. C. He'd tried to "date" her to pay her court, but Cynthia's romantic interest centers about Dr. Sellers with whom she works at the clinic. It was not until the doctor discovered that he had a rival for Nurse Doyle's esteem, that he began to see her as a woman as well as a nurse. He is gravely concerned when Cynthia accepts an invitation to dine with the handsome Mr. Brandt. So much so, that he himself endeavors to date her. Together they attend a party given by Roz Effinger, Brandt, for whom Roz had long ago set her cap, is also present, and he makes no secret of the "torch" he carries for Cyn.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

PAPA PINELLI recognized Cynthia, as before, and came bustling up to make her and her young man welcome. He saw that it was a different young man, so he said, with a sly look in his beady, shoebutton eyes, "You like the same booth as before? Or this time you like a table?"

"A booth, I believe," Cynthia said, before Walt could make a decision. For tonight she did not want to be seated in the center of things; as Norman had said, and a much better place for a private conversation, which was what Walt had said he wanted.

"You like some red wine like before, too?" Papa Pinelli asked, after he had taken their order.

"I think that would be very nice," Cynthia said gravely, suppressing a smile.

"What's all this 'like before' business?" the young doctor demanded, as soon as Papa Pinelli had taken his fat person off. "Is this where you had dinner the other night with your—Mr. Brandt?"

"Well, yes it is." Her smile was demure. Almost as coy as Roz could be, Cynthia thought wryly, so she hastened to add, "But I'm sure that doesn't make any difference to you."

"I don't know." That small frown gathered between his thick brows. "I don't like to feel that they are entertaining a ghost—a third party—at our table. Is this the same place where you two sat?"

"I can't see that that matters, either." It was the same booth.

"Perhaps not." The scowl did not disappear. "However, if we hadn't ordered, I'd feel like leaving and going somewhere else."

"Oh, but Papa Pinelli's spaghetti is marvelous!" Cynthia exclaimed. If he isn't jealous, she thought, why should Walt feel that way? Maybe what he wanted to discuss was of a very personal nature, after all. Hope rose high. That same hope which Norman had told her one should always hang onto.

"Well, it looks as though we'll have to eat it," Walt said. "And drink his red wine—I didn't know you ever drank anything, Cynthia."

"There's a lot you don't know about me," she returned, with a secret, mysterious smile. Let him think she enjoyed a drink, if it would make him sit up and take notice. Anything would be better than for him to keep on thinking of her as a sort of mechanical, if necessary, part of his clinic.

"I'm beginning to think there is," He leaned forward a little to look at her more closely. Yet it still was something of a professional scrutiny, as though he thought perhaps she was ill.

Cynthia could not help but compare it with the intimate looks Norman gave her. And she knew that if Walt got around to holding her hand before dinner was over, it would most likely be because he wanted to count her pulse again.

"This wine is quite good," Walt decided after a while. "The spaghetti is good, too. We must do this more often, Cynthia."

That would suit her just fine. But she was wondering when he would get around to that important topic. Nearly everything he had said, so far, had bordered on the personal side. So maybe, just maybe, he wanted to confess that he now realized she was a woman, a young and not altogether unattractive woman, and that—

"What I wanted to talk about," he broke into her thoughts in his abrupt manner, "is a plan I have in mind."

"Yes?" She gave him back look for look, wishing she could make it the sort of secret, binding exchange that Norman managed to do so expertly.

"It's about the clinic."

"Oh." She hoped her voice had not dropped too much.

"I want to add to it—another room. A large room. His voice rose with determination and enthusiasm. Driven by these, he even reached out a hand to lay it on Cynthia's, resting on the table. "A room that could serve as a school-room for those children, such as the spastic cases, who cannot attend public schools, and as a recreation center. . . . I have been thinking about such an addition for a long time. It would mean so much. What do you think about such a plan, Cynthia?"

She wanted to say, "That's all you ever think about—the clinic. Haven't you got any red blood in your arteries or any romance in your soul?"

But of course she didn't. She said, "It sounds wonderful." She was afraid her voice did not sound right; it was difficult to make it sound thrilled when she had just had such a setback to those personal hopes of hers. But Walt would not notice. He did not even know he still had his hand over hers.

"I was sure you would. But the trouble is, it will cost a lot of money."

"Oh, you can get that." When you had a dream like Walt's, somehow you managed to make it come true.

"I suppose we could put on a drive, appeal to various sources—perhaps even find someone who would become interested enough to back such a project." The scowl had left his face. It was alight with this dream of his. It was such an unselfish dream that it could not help but kindle a flame in others.

Cynthia told herself she ought to be ashamed to be feeling as she did. She made another effort to sound as enthusiastic as he. "I'm sure you can. It may take time. But you'll raise the money. And of course it will be a wonderful addition to the clinic."

She had worried, too, about those children who were so badly handicapped they could not attend regular schools. Some of them received a few hours of schoolwork during the week from a visiting teacher from the board of education. But that was not always adequate. What such children needed was the companionship and the spirit of competition that only class work could supply.

"I knew you would see it as I do," Walt's eyes smiled gratefully into hers, his hand gave hers a little squeeze of appreciation. "I'll need your help, Cynthia. That's another reason," he added, removing his hand from hers and leaning back against the high seat, "that I was upset the other day when you spoke as though there was some possibility of your not staying at the clinic."

"Oh, I suppose I'll be there until I grow old and gray." Her tone was flippant and a bit ironic. But that, too, would be lost on him. Hope had died completely. What was the use? Walt would never wake up. Nothing would ever bring him down to earth.

"You'll never be old and gray," he said, with a broad smile at such an idea.

"Oh, yes, I will. Life is very short." She spoke cryptically now. There was even that popular song, "It's Later Than You Think." It would be too late, before Walt ever realized that they could have built a wonderful life together, not only in their work in the clinic, but a personal life of their own.

"Perhaps you're right," he agreed. "But when you're busy doing the sort of work you enjoy and feel is worth while, time goes by too quickly to think about such matters. And now we'll be busier than ever, trying to work out this new plan." He leaned toward her, all seriousness once more. "I know I can depend on you then, Cynthia. Only I still feel, especially before we get into all this, that you ought to take that little vacation."

"Maybe I ought, since as a doctor you prescribe it." Maybe he wants to get rid of me for a while, she thought. Maybe he's sick and tired of the sight of me, day after day.

"Fine!" Certainly he seemed exceedingly pleased. "Arrange for it any time you like. In fact I've already spoken to Miss Whitings, over at the hospital—I saw her when I dropped in to take a look at the little Mancini boy—and she said she'd be glad to come in and help out."

BABY JETS

MANY A MILITARY pilot has complained, either privately or publicly, that planes were so overinstrumented that both pilot and plane performance suffered.

At the outset of World War II, the Japanese Zero was outclimbing and outperforming the best U. S. fighters. The Zero had an Achilles heel, however, lacking armor around the pilots or fuel tanks. Once manufacturers had put more power in American fighters the Zero was pretty much a dead duck.

The Navy has problems of launching and storing fighter planes and fighter bombers within the limited confines of carrier flight decks and hangar decks. So it has been probably more sensitive to the problem of overburdening its planes than was necessary for the Air Force. The Navy has now done something about it. Press and public have been shown a diminutive, needle-nosed fighter-bomber which looks like a midget alongside some of the newer carrier-based planes. Actually it is about half the size and weight, although the builders and designers claim it will perform a great many necessary chores, including carrying smaller versions of an atomic bomb.

Here is a reversal of a trend which began at the outset of World War II and is still in progress. With greater and greater speeds and altitudes called for, designers have had to remove a great many chores which the pilot would ordinarily perform. Instruments with hundreds of small vacuum tubes, miles of wiring, complicated relays, and heavy masses of computing machinery of various types do certain jobs more reliably and much faster than the human reflex. But the result was a cry for more and more power to lift the greater weight.

The midget jet meets not only Navy carrier requirements for a midget fighter but it is relatively easy to produce in quantity. Such a prospect fits right into the planning of NATO air commanders.

VOICE WITH A CHISEL

A NEW YORK legislative committee is out to determine if the communist is fattening his party treasury by muscling in on the racket of soliciting charity by telephone. It would be a fertile field for the subversive as well as the immoral.

The same committee exposed wasteful and profiteering charity rackets and won legislation forcing registration and identification of solicitors. It is now studying the advisability of completely outlawing telephone solicitations by professional fund raisers. The New York committee's chairman says it now is ready to question officers of organizations suspected of diverting charity collections to propaganda uses.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell's allegedly "arbitrary" management of the Democratic party's affairs since the disastrous 1952 election has stirred a general demand for his removal before or immediately after next fall's Congressional contests. The organization's oldest and not want to enter the 1956 presidential campaign with him at the helm.

For a stopgap chairman chosen for personal rather than political reasons by a badly defeated candidate, Adlai E. Stevenson, Mitchell has behaved in a more czaristic manner than such a beloved and skilled boss as James A. Farley ever dared. He is winning no friends or delegates for Stevenson, who shows every sign of willingness to accept another nomination two years hence.

Five enemies share his attitude on this question. Mitchell's known sympathy for the Supreme Court's decision against segregation in the public schools threatens to reopen the schism which the Roosevelt-Lehman-Humphrey "radicals" created with their demand for a "loyalty" oath at the 1952 national convention.

His attitude tends to temper Southern Democrats' bitterness toward the Republicans because the ruling was handed down by an Eisenhower-appointed Chief Justice, Earl Warren.

FAVORITISM — The latest complaint, and perhaps the most disturbing, is that he shows favoritism in disbursing funds to congressional candidates in the forthcoming elections. Mitchell denies that he has been partial, but Democrats in southern states who voted for Ike insist that he is holding out on them.

Finally, New York Democrats believe that he is backing Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. in their gubernatorial campaign. They think he seeks to regain favor with the Roosevelt faction, balancing his snub of James. And many prominent New Yorkers think F. D. R. Jr. would be a

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

Senator George Malone of Nevada is the only professional engineer in the United States Senate and therefore he brings into that body a point of view which is very different from that of the lawyer. An engineer is trained to deal with facts without poetic license; a lawyer is trained to defend a thesis or to advocate a cause.

The problem that faces Malone's Committee is: precisely what is the situation of the United States with regard to minerals, metals and other strategic materials. This Committee has produced a tremendous volume of technical data, difficult to read at times but all of it extremely important. The assumption has heretofore been that the United States was short of certain strategic materials which could only be made available by overseas commerce which could be shut down swiftly in the event of war. For instance, tin and rubber from Malaya might be withheld from us should Red China come into possession of that country.

According to the Malone report, 77 minerals and materials, included in this report, are vital to the maintenance of the American economy and its prowess as a military force. It lays down this finding absolutely:

"The Western Hemisphere will be the only dependable source of the critical raw materials in the event of an all-out world war.

"The delivery of any such critical materials to this Nation across a major ocean during such a conflict will be highly 'problematical'."

This position is unquestionable in the nature of modern warfare. The oceans can be closed down until one power or the other gains a total victory. The schnorkel submarine, the atomic submarine and the long-distance airplane make the ocean lanes of traffic unsuitable in war. The Pacific Ocean was unsafe for the transportation of supplies of rubber and tin during World War II, with the result that the United States was forced to develop a synthetic rubber industry based on the Baruch Report. It will be forgotten, of course, how Fiorello La Guardia desperately collected tin cans in the hope of meeting the tin crisis, cans which eventually helped to fill the Jersey meadows.

The hope of meeting future crises is in a hemispheric cultivation of mineral production and the means for the transportation of minerals and their products without the perils of the seas. The "Europe First" attitude of the State Department resulted not only in the loss of China but also in the partial abandonment of the Latin American countries. This Committee lays emphasis on the importance of regarding the Western Hemisphere and cultivating its economy as a unit. It says:

"It is imperative to the security of this Nation and to the nations of the Western Hemisphere that they foster the greatest measure of self-sufficiency in the production of the critical materials.

"It is vital to our domestic welfare, economy and security that maximum economic production be maintained within our borders.

"The Western Hemisphere can be defended.

"The Western Hemisphere can be made self-sufficient in the production of the critical materials which are essential in war and in peace."

Irritable Colon Results From Emotional Upsets

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EMOTIONAL upsets are usually responsible for an irritable colon.

The colon or large intestine of man is controlled by two sets of nerves. One set promotes the contraction of the intestinal wall with the production of mucus and an increase of circulation to the lining membrane of the intestine. The opposing system promotes a decrease in mucus secretions.

The Normal State

In the normal person these two parts of the nervous system maintain a balance and the bowels work normally. However, when one part of the nervous system gains preponderance over the other, various symptoms will appear.

The part that promotes contraction of the bowel wall and the production of mucus is the one most likely to gain the upper hand. When this occurs, there is an increased activity of the bowel, with over-production of mucus. This condition is sometimes called mucous colitis or irritable colon.

Some Disturbances

The patient complains of painful intestinal spasms and hindrance to the passage of the bowel contents. He suffers alternately from constipation and diarrhea, with much discomfort and distention of the bowel from gas. He sometimes feels as if he cannot have a bowel movement because of an obstruction at the outlet.

Many of these people fear that they have a serious disease of the bowel such as cancer. Their emotional stability is usually less than average and they are constantly anxious and insecure.

Nervous Reaction

A person who suffers from this type of disease should be made to realize that he may have these attacks of spastic colitis whenever he gets nervous, just as he may blush involuntarily when he is embarrassed.

If he can learn a philosophy of relaxation, perhaps by developing some hobbies or removing stress from his life, the symptoms from an irritable colon will usually disappear.

Sometimes the emotional difficulty is so deep-seated that the help of a psychiatrist is urgently needed. The use of anti-spasmodic drugs with mild sedatives under the physician's directions is often of help.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. P.: If penicillin is given by mouth, will it have less likelihood of causing severe allergic reactions in the patient?

Answer: Yes, this is true, although the reason why this happens is not known.

Nurse Lady

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

SYNOPSIS

Norman Brandt and nurse Cynthia Doyle had first met at the scene of an accident near Washington, D. C. He'd tried to "date" her to pay her court, but Cynthia's romantic interest centers about Dr. Sellers with whom she works at the clinic. It was not until the doctor discovered that he had a rival for Nurse Doyle's esteem, that he began to see her as a woman as well as a nurse. He is gravely concerned when Cynthia accepts an invitation to dine with the handsome Mr. Brandt. So much so, that he himself endeavors to date her. Together they attend a party given by Dr. Edinger, Brandt, for whom Roz had long ago set her cap. Is also present, and he makes no secret of the "torch" he carries for Cynthia.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

PAPA PINELLI recognized Cynthia, as before, and came bustling up to make her and her young man welcome. He saw that it was a different young man, so he said, with a sly look in his beady, shoebutton eyes, "You like the same booth as before? Or this time you like a table?"

"A booth, I believe," Cynthia said, before Walt could make a decision. For tonight she did not want to be seated in the center of things; a booth would be much cozier, as Norman had said, and a much better place for a private conversation, which was what Walt had said he wanted.

"You like some red wine like before, too?" Papa Pinelli asked, after he had taken their order.

"I think that would be very nice," Cynthia said gravely, suppressing a smile.

"What's all this 'like before' business?" the young doctor demanded, as soon as Papa Pinelli had taken his first person off. "Is this where you had dinner the other night with your—Mr. Brandt?"

"Well, yes it is." Her smile was demure. Almost as coy as Roz could be, Cynthia thought wryly, so she hastened to add, "But I'm sure that doesn't make any difference to you."

"I don't know." That small frown gathered between his thick brows. "I don't like to feel that we are entertaining a ghost—a third party—at our table. Is this the same place where you two sat?"

"I can't see that that matters, either." It was the same booth.

"Perhaps not." The scowl did not disappear. "However, if we hadn't ordered, I'd feel like leaving and going somewhere else."

"Oh, but Papa Pinelli's spaghetti is marvelous!" Cynthia exclaimed. If he isn't jealous, she thought, why should Walt feel that way?

Maybe what he wanted to discuss was of a very personal nature, after all. Hope rose high. That same hope which Norman had told her one should always hang onto.

"Well, it looks as though we'll have to eat it," Walt said. "And drink his red wine—I didn't know you ever drank anything, Cynthia!"

"There's a lot you don't know about me," she returned, with a secret, mysterious smile. Let him think she enjoyed a drink, if it would make him sit up and take notice. Anything would be better.

than for him to keep on thinking of her as a sort of mechanical, if necessary, part of his clinic.

"I'm beginning to think there is." He leaned forward a little to look at her more closely. Yet it still was something of a professional scrutiny, as though he thought perhaps she was ill.

Cynthia could not help but compare it with the intimate looks Norman gave her. And she knew that if Walt got around to holding her hand before dinner was over, it would most likely be because he wanted to court her pulse again.

"This wine is quite good," Walt decided after a while.

"The spaghetti is good, too. We must do this more often, Cynthia."

That would suit her just fine. But she was wondering when he would get around to that important topic. Nearly everything he had said, so far, had bordered on the personal side. So maybe, just maybe, he wanted to confess that he now realized she was a woman, a young and not altogether unattractive woman, and that he was thinking about her.

"What I wanted to talk about," he broke into her thoughts in his abrupt manner, "is a plan I have in mind."

"Yes?" She gave him back look for look, wishing she could make it the sort of secret, binding exchange that Norman managed to do so expertly.

"It's about the clinic."

"Oh," she hoped her voice had not dropped too much.

"I want to add to it—another room. A large room. His voice rose with determination and enthusiasm. Driven by these, he even reached out a hand to lay it on Cynthia's, resting on the table.

"A room that could serve as a schoolroom for those children, such as the spastic cases, who cannot attend public schools, and as a recreation center. I have been thinking about such an addition for a long time. It would mean so much. What do you think about such a plan, Cynthia?"

She wanted to say, "That's all you ever think about—the clinic. Haven't you got any red blood in your arteries or any romance in your soul?"

But of course she didn't. She said, "It sounds wonderful." She was afraid her voice did not sound right; it was difficult to make it sound thrilled when she had just had such a setback to those personal hopes of hers. But Walt would not notice. He did not even know he still had his hand over hers.

"I was sure you would. But the trouble is, it will cost a lot of money."

"Oh, you can get that." When you had a dream like Walt's, somehow you managed to make it come true.

"I suppose we could put on a drive, appeal to various sources—perhaps even find someone who would become interested enough to back such a project." The scowl had left his face. It was alight with this dream of his. It was such an unselfish dream that it could not help but kindle a flame in others.

Cynthia told herself she ought to be ashamed to be feeling as she did. She made another effort to sound as enthusiastic as he. "I'm sure you can. It may take time. But you'll raise the money. And of course it will be a wonderful addition to the clinic."

She had worried, too, about those children who were so badly handicapped they could not attend regular schools. Some of them received a few hours of schoolwork during the week from a visiting teacher from the board of education. But that was not always adequate. What such children needed was the companionship and the spirit of competition that only class work could supply.

"I knew you would see it as I do," Walt's eyes smiled gratefully into hers, his hand gave hers a little squeeze of appreciation. "I'll need your help, Cynthia. That's another reason," he added, removing his hand from hers and leaning back against the high seat, "that I was upset the other day when you spoke as though there was some possibility of your not staying at the clinic."

"Oh, I suppose I'll be there until I grow old and gray." Her tone was flippant and a bit ironic. But that, too, would be lost on him.

Hope had died completely. What was the use? Walt would never bring him down to earth.

"You'll never be old and gray," he said, with a broad smile at such an idea.

"Oh, yes, I will. Life is very short." She spoke cryptically now. There was even that popular song, "It's Later Than You Think." It would be too late, before Walt ever realized that they could have built a wonderful life together, not only in their work in the clinic, but a personal life of their own.

"Perhaps you're right," he agreed. "But when you're busy doing the sort of work you enjoy and feel is worth while, time goes by too quickly to think about such matters. And now we'll be busier than ever, trying to work out this new plan."

He leaned toward her, all seriousness once more. "I know I can depend on you then, Cynthia. Only I still feel, especially before we get into all this, that you ought to take that little vacation."

"Maybe I ought, since as a doctor you prescribe it." Maybe he wants to get rid of me for a while, she thought. Maybe he's sick and tired of the sight of me, day after day.

"Fine!" Certainly he seemed exceedingly pleased. "Arrange for it any time you like. In fact I've already spoken to Miss Whiting, over at the hospital—I saw her when I dropped in to take a look at the little Mancini boy—and she said she'd be glad to come in and help out."

Death Got Up Early This Morning; He Had A Lot Of Work Just Ahead

Editor's Note — The National Safety Council forecasts a record number of deaths over the 4th of July weekend. In the interest of a safe and sane holiday, we are reissuing the following column which was widely praised by safety officials last year.

NEW YORK (AP) — Death got up early this morning.

As America began to celebrate the long Independence Day weekend, Death promptly went on overtime.

For when mankind has a holiday for any reason, Death can know no idleness. He must tabulate a great human self-slaughter.

And so it was Death rose early today. He had a lot to do in the busy days ahead. He had many a mortal rendezvous to keep on highway and byway, in homes and saloons, on pond and pavement on mountain cliff and summer playground.

For Death had a double duty. He had not only his usual job to do, the escorting of the sick and old and life-worn across his pale frontier. He had his extra holiday clients to attend to. The lost battalion of the needless dead.

On such days as these, Death, the fair weather friend of the foolish, initiates new members into the D.O.A. club. This club has no dues and no life memberships. It is made up of unseeing holiday victims who are brought to hospitals and tagged with a card bearing three initials that stand for "dead on arrival."

Yes, Death got up early this morning. For by next Monday night there are hundreds of Americans he must meet and wave to their doom—a D.O.A. tag. The potential membership crop was large and the land was wide, and Death is conscientious. He didn't want anyone who earned that tag to miss it.

Wherever Americans set out to celebrate the holiday, this skeletal comrade of the stupid and careless went right along for the fun. And here is what he will say to some, or perhaps is already saying even now:

In 10,000 cars rounding 10,000 curves, he whispers to the driver, "Go on and pass that car ahead of you. Never mind what your wife is saying. What makes her think there might be another car coming around the bend toward you anyway? Wives are always worrying about something."

But on some of the curves another car does come around the bend. There is a scream and a crash of metal. And Death says to the silent husband, "So long, sucker." And he says to the silent wife, "You'll never have to live with another fool, dear." Then he walks over to the silent huddled driver of the second car and says, "Pal, I know you didn't want to join our organization, but I am only taking membership, and this other guy nominated you. And now you belong."

Or Death puts his arm around a teen-age high school driver and says, "Faster, kid, faster. Boy, you're a real hot rodder. Sure, you can see clear in the moonlight. Let's see how close you can come to that bridge abutment." A moment later the boy's ribs are in

Tarheel Village Improves Service

SEVEN SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — Sunday mail service will be resumed here July 18.

In what the Post Office Department described as an economy measure, the service was suspended last month.

Then the townspeople got together and raised $136, the annual cost of the service, which they sent to Washington.

It was returned today, along with a letter from F. B. Davis, District mail supervisor at Norfolk, Va., reinstating the service.

Strict Traffic Control Pledged

COLUMBUS (AP) — The State Highway Patrol has announced the same strict traffic control policy will be used this July 4 as was used Memorial Day.

Col. George Mingle, patrol superintendent, said every available man will be placed on duty. On Memorial Day, 3,918 motorists were arrested and 6,072 given written warnings.

his lungs, blood drowns his whimpers, and Death tags him and says, "You know, I almost thought you'd make it. Well, even counting the funeral costs, I still saved your folks most of the $5000 they'd put away for your college education."

And somewhere a mother at a picnic, busy fixing the lunch, is sure someone else in the family is keeping an eye on the child who toddles toward the lakefront. And, sure enough, someone is. "Come in, little boy," says Death from the water. "I will catch you, and your mother will never, never forget you again. See the pretty tag I have for you?"

An overweight man of 45 with a fading heart calls across the tennis court to his son, "Junior, I'll beat you this fifth set or drop dead." And as he wearily lifts his racquet, Death taps him and says, "Drop."

Death waits on a darkened porch

as a little girl in a filmy dress sneaks out with a sparkler in her hand. "Go ahead and light the sparkler all by yourself," coaxes Death. "You're a big girl now."

When the screams die into silence, Death hurries to a room where a holiday-lonely man, sick with self-pity, looks at the gun in his hand and mutters "Would I be any more lonely dead?" And Death, writing his tag, says, "Well, come and see."

So Death will move at a ceaseless pace today, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, playing his deadly game of tag across all America with the holiday risk-takers and their victims. And the foolsh, and the unwary. Wherever he pauses an ambulance will follow, halt, pick up a still burden and race with it to a hospital where it will get the epitaph:

"D.O.A.—dead on arrival."

tion he offered the internal revenue agents, but he told a newsmen he "turned the matter over to them" a few days ago.

Top Allied Chiefs Resigned To Let Most Of Indochina Run Down Communist Drain

can government, through a speech by Dulles, issued an emergency call for "united action" to halt Communist expansion in Southeast Asia. Privately, officials were talking in terms of intervention in the Indochina war.

France and Britain were cool. In mid-April Dulles flew to London and Paris. On his return home, he thought he had agreed to have a conference and begin drawing up a 10-nation Asian pact.

A bitter controversy with Eden arose when the British blocked his plans for a meeting a few days in advance of the Geneva conference. Britain wanted no part of such a move before Geneva. She promised to explore it when peace negotiations were ended.

Since that time U. S. policy has been stymied. For various reasons it proved impossible to set up an alliance without Britain. A few weeks ago it appeared that Geneva would fail to get peace.

But then a French government upheaval and certain Communist maneuvers caused the British, French and others to take more hope. Meanwhile, Churchill had sent word he wanted to come to Washington.

Also, five Asian countries—Indonesia, India, Pakistan, Burma and Ceylon—met at Colombo and discussed the twin problems, as they see them, of Western colonialism and international communism. They tended to split between the Western and Communist sides.

Just before coming to Washington, Eden suggested a nonaggression system which would involve Western countries and Red China in guarantees to secure the safety of Indochina. This was an obvious bid by Britain for the support of India and if possible, Indonesia—countries the British knew would never join in a Southeast Asian anti-Communist pact.

Another development parallel with the Churchill talks here was the visit of Red China's premier and foreign minister, Chou En-lai, to Pandit Nehru on his way home from Geneva.

In all these matters initiative seemed to rest with the French in trying to get an Indochina peace, with the British in trying to find a new approach to the Asian problem, and with Red China in trying to woo Nehru out of his chosen neutralism into a friendlier attitude toward Peiping.

Some of the nations most friendly to the United States in the Southwest Pacific-Southeast Asia area are distressed by the way things have gone. The recently re-elected Australian government has hardened its position on Southeast Asia and now is urging action much faster than is Britain. New Zealand seems to have taken the same position. At a meeting here Wednesday, representatives of Australia, New Zealand and the United States expressed "satisfaction"—apparently a carefully selected word—with the Churchill-Eisenhower agreement that plans for a collective Asian defense should be pressed forward. But among themselves they agreed upon, and announced, a "need for immediate action." Diplomats say the Philippines and Thailand feel the same way about it.

Secretary Dulles has before him a plan to go ahead quickly and create some kind of a coalition by common understanding or agreement among nations willing to cooperate—and to do so with or without Britain.

Eden has taken the position it will require a long time to work out a treaty. Even when Indochinese peace negotiations have taken a decisive turn, perhaps within the next 18 days, American authorities are not sure how enthusiastically the British will act on a security system.

For that matter, some of the best informed and most astute U.S. authorities are not sure how quickly this country can move either.

Watching parts of Indochina "go down the drain," as the saying is, the government clearly has been of two minds. Some authorities like Dulles (at least last March) and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, felt the United States had to intervene to save Indochina. There were others who talked strongly and publicly about the possible need for intervention, among them Senate Republican Leader Knowland and Vice President Nixon. Still others such as Secretary of Defense Wilson made clear that no money nor authority was being asked of Congress for such action and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey virtually ruled it out with statements about keeping taxes at nonemergency levels.

It is always difficult for a nation with divided councils at home to exert vigorous leadership abroad. French diplomats pointed this out privately. So did the British and others. There were forces in Britain pressing toward separate action on her part. The United States itself took the position that Indochina was a French problem and the French would have to solve it as best they could.

It is difficult to say when the chances of American intervention dropped off virtually to zero.

It probably was shortly after the fall of the fortress of Dien Bien Phu. It became apparent then that the French could not continue indefinitely to fight the war with the combat help of only native forces while policy makers of the Allied world haggled over the conditions and circumstances under which one or another nation might join in and give help.

Fishing in such muddy and troubled waters as those which cover the whole disastrous Indochina situation, American officials at the moment are able to define the best and worst they hope for.

Animal-Fearing Juggler Tries To Save Friend

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Eric Drosdsky is a circus juggler who is scared of animals. But last night he leaped into the lion cage and fought desperately for the life of trainer William Coetzee, his best friend.

Women screamed and fled from the tent when one of the six performing lions turned on Coetzee as he was putting the animal through its paces. As all six lions pounced, Drosdsky rushed into the ring. With a chair, he tried to draw the raging beasts toward himself.

The lions clawed the trainer. Then they chased the juggler until ringmaster Dennis Wood joined him with a club. Together they held the beasts at bay and dragged Coetzee out.

The trainer, badly mauled, died three hours later. Drosdsky, meanwhile, had gone on with his own juggling act.

Farmer Killed

MEDINA (AP)—A farmer, William E. Good, 71, of nearby Burbank, died yesterday of injuries he received when he fell off a hay wagon on his farm.

Sokolosky's These Days

In time of war, there will be no alternative to self-sufficiency. Once the oceans are closed down to commerce, we shall have to exist on what we have within our own boundaries or what we have stockpiled or what we can bring to our smelters and mills from within the Western Hemisphere. Much of our thinking on this subject has been based on the assumption that many strategic minerals and materials were available only in Europe, Asia or Africa.

It is like that famous speech on "acres of diamonds": we seek all over the world for what can be found in our back-yard. The Committee found:

"During the last two decades procurement practices have dangerously increased our dependence upon nations across major oceans for the critical materials without which this Nation cannot survive. "Evidence is conclusive that we have become dependent upon overseas suppliers across such major oceans for many of such critical materials. We must avoid dependence upon an overseas supplier to the extent that he could suddenly render us impotent by withdrawing supplies of critical materials during a world conflict, or could use such dependence as a political or economic bargaining lever."

The supply of minerals and essential materials is the first task of war preparedness in this age.

Bell Phone Setup Said 'Watered'

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. is asking for an $8,913,000 rate increase on the basis of inflated figures, says the Akron assistant law director.

Attacking the company's rate base—the value of Ohio Bell property on which the state says it may realize a fair and reasonable return, Richard O. Gantz said:

"It's a watered rate base, and the company has been watering it every year."

Gantz has been doing most of the cross-examining of Ohio Bell witnesses in a hearing before the state utilities commission on the company's request for a boost.

Leader Nominated

GRANVILLE (AP)—Mrs. Harry E. Smoyer of Cleveland has been nominated as president of the United Church Women of Ohio, the women's department of the Ohio Council of Churches.

Exams Booked

COLUMBUS (AP)—Examinations for the position of chief of the division of aid for the aged will be held July 29, Carl W. Smith, chairman of the state civil service commission, announced.

Elks' Nine Win Little Leaguer 11 To 5 Game

The Elks maintained their unbeaten standing in the Little League by downing General Electric, 11 to 5, Thursday at Lewis Park. Ellis allowed GE only three hits.

Eight errors on the part of the losers helped the Elks in their scoring spree. They scored a pair of runs in each of the first three frames. They got one more in the fourth and ended up with four in the fifth.

GE couldn't get rolling until the fifth when they finally pushed across a run. In the bottom of the sixth they got a futile rally going which did gain four runs for them. But it was too little and too late.

Bell, Elks' catcher, hit a home run in the fifth with two on. GE's backstop Gregg retaliated with a two-run round tripper in the sixth. Elks' hurler Ellis aided his own cause with two-for-four at the plate. Imbler, of GE, had the same.

Line score follows:

Elks ..... 222 140 —11 6 2
GE ..... 000 014 —5 3 8
Ellis (p), Bell (c),
Stevens (p), Gregg (c).

OSU Will Launch New Ag Program

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office, located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here, headed by County Agent Larry Best, is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Young men who want to learn more about farming will find a new agricultural study program available at the Ohio State University College of Agriculture this fall.

C. S. Hutchison, assistant dean of the College of Agriculture, says it's a specialized program for young farmers who have only limited time for college training. It offers courses in dairying; poultry production; livestock farming; farm machinery, equipment and buildings; farm management and rural living.

Hutchison says the special program at Ohio State is similar to short courses in many other land-grant colleges. The special "Ag" students may receive college credit and apply it toward a degree if they decide to transfer to the regular 4-year curriculum.

The special program students may enroll at the beginning of any quarter of the school year. They may enroll for one, two, or three quarters a year. Quarters start in late September, early January, and late March.

The first quarter for the special program students opens Sept. 22 with registration and orientation training. The orientation training gives students a chance to become familiar with the University.

High school graduates interested in the special agricultural program should write or call John T. Mount, junior dean of the College of Agriculture, Townshend Hall, Ohio State University, Columbus. He will supply enrollment papers and additional information about the program.

Summer plantings of most vegetable seeds should be deeper than spring plantings, Eugene Wittmeyer, Ohio State University extension horticulturist reminded gardeners. That's because the soil is usually drier at this time of year.

For quick germination when seeds are sown in dry soil, soak the bottom of the furrow with water before planting then mulch or shade the newly sown row until the seedlings are up. Transplanting vegetable plants also requires a little more care during summer than in spring or fall, Wittmeyer added. He advised gardeners to set plants in the evening when temperatures are lower.

He said to keep as much soil on the roots as possible and to apply one or two cupfuls of water in each planting hole. Allow the water to soak in thoroughly before filling the hole with dry soil. Firm the soil lightly around the plants then shade them for a day or two after transplanting to help get them started.

Removing sweet corn suckers frequently puzzles home gardeners and commercial growers, according to Eugene Wittmeyer, Ohio State University extension horticulturist.

He described the suckers as secondary stems that grow from the base of the corn plants. Some varieties develop more suckers than others, he added.

Removing the suckers seldom increases sweet corn yields and may decrease yields if the suckers are removed late in the season, the specialist said.

An Ohio horticulturist has revealed that using a straw mulch system of soil management in an experimental planting of red raspberries had increased the yield nearly 1,000 pints an acre.

R. G. Hill of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station said this additional yield would result in an increased income of approximately $200 an acre in most seasons.

Maintaining the red raspberry plantings under mulch eliminated costs of cultivation, seeding the cover crops, and much of the cost of weed control. These savings would generally more than offset the cost of mulch materials.

In addition to increased yields, berries were larger and cleaner and picking conditions were improved where the mulch system was used Hill observed.

'Molasses' Found To Be Real Mash

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Sheriff's deputies didn't believe the signs on the barrels hidden in woods near here. So they went ahead and tested the barrels' contents.

It was mash — the kind used to make liquor. The signs read: "Poison—Cotton Molasses."

Fair Season Due To Start July 21

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's annual county fair season starts July 21 with the Jackson County fair in Wellston.

And before the last popcorn stand has been removed, an estimated 3 1/4 million persons will have attended the 82 county fairs and eight independent exhibitions.

All fair dates except those for Pike County have been set. All of the fairs have night shows except the Brown and Richland County fairs and the Barlow fair.

Last fair of the season will be the big Circleville Pumpkin Show, always held the third week in October.

Expectant Papas Get Free Snacks

BRADFORD, Pa. (AP)—Expectant papas pacing the maternity ward at Bradford Hospital can now calm their nerves with free snacks.

An anonymous donor has given the hospital a new snack bar and will pick up the checks for the hospital's staff, patients and visitors.

Hospital Head, Police Explain Blood Routine

City police and Mrs. Margaret Bradbury, superintendent of Berger Hospital, explained late Thursday how an erroneous report developed in connection with blood supplies for a recent traffic victim here.

It was reported, on the basis of police information, that whole blood had to be sent here from Columbus by bus, in a futile effort to save the life of George Hook of Ashville, 90-year old victim of a highway crash Wednesday.

Mrs. Bradbury said the blood referred to was not needed for the emergency case, but was intended for the treatment of other hospital patients, thus permitting delivery here by bus. Actually, Hook had received four pints of whole blood from the Berger Hospital lab, she said.

Confusion was caused by the fact that city police were ordered to pick up the blood shipment here when it arrived by bus, leading to

Detective's Ruse Prevents Suicide Of Gotham Woman

NEW YORK (AP)—A detective's ruse saved a middle-aged woman who, for an hour and a half, perched on a fifth-story hotel window ledge and threatened to jump.

Some 5,000 onlookers stood by as Mrs. Marion Oakes, about 50, was coaxed to safety last night. She said she was despondent over the death of her husband.

Police pleaded with her without success as she sat on the ledge of the Hotel Endicott screaming, "Gangsters are after me."

Finally, Detective Bob McDonald put on a white shirt backward, which in the darkness resembled a doctor's tunic, and keeping up a stream of pseudo-medical talk, persuaded her to step off the ledge "only for one minute."

She was then grabbed by another policeman. The woman was taken to a hospital for observation.

The impression it was intended for use on the emergency case.

Mrs. Bradbury said the hospital keeps from four to six pints of each type of whole blood on hand at the hospital. Supplies are replenished from Columbus when needed.
